Immediately after the receipt here last night of news of the wreck, preparations were made to despatch steamers in search of the missing boats and the abandoued ship. The Ulunda got away at four A. M. and the government steamer Newfield a couple of hours later. The atenuer Halifax which arrived tonight from Boston, reports pasing the Ulunda and Newfield today haface to the steamer and Leverpool, the Ulunda being about 15 miles ahead.
Thick snow was falling at the time. The two steamers were evidently skirting the coast on the watch for the bosts and the Gerons. They would reach the neighbortood of the disaster this evening and if the Gerous is about she will likeiybe heard from tomorrow. The crew

FEARFUL WEATHER AT SEA,

Previous Sessions.

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 2 The legislature of 1888 will meet at the capitol on Wednesday, Jan. 5, at noom. The Sensits of the new constitution remains for a third year the same as to the two previous sessions. In the assembly the Republicans, in contrast to the last enormous majority of last year have but a bare working majority of four votes, including two Citizens' Union mambers from New York city.

This small majority means that no approprietion bills can be passed without the aid of Democratic votes to make up the two-thirds and three-fifths votes dramaded by the constitution upon all bills appropriating state moneys. The Senate has a very large Republicans majority, there being 36 Republicans and only 14 Democrats. James M. E. O'Grady, of Rochester, will be re-elected speaker of the assembly.

Among the questions to come before the legislature will be the modufaction of the Raines liquor law, improvement of roads, amendment of the so called anti-trust law, and reduction of the price of gas in New York city.

Sunday was at spical winter day in the investment of Eurth, by Clement Fezandie. This is a usual, the number is overflowing with pictures and poems McClure's. McClure's Magazine for January 7.eldi pérhaps its first attraction in its pictures. As an example of general excellence in magazine illustration it is, indeed, an extraordinary number. Every picture but one-a beautiful reproduction of Burne Jones' painting Vespertina Quines-has telation to the reading matter—is strictly illustrative, in other words, but such is the intrinsic interest of their and the vividness of their execution, one derives from simply running through the number and looking at them that mental satisfaction which is usually to be had buly from reading. They are, in other words, each and all, a good story in themselves. But then this is what the pictures hattrally would be in McClure's, which lives to the rule of never failing, whatever else happens, to t'il a good story.

In this particular number the good story is told also in most of the articles—not mertly in those which are stories by confession, but in the others as well. For example, Mr. Hamblen's account of his own personal experience as a rai road brakeman, with its almost dark enjects. relation to the reading matter—is strict-

For example, Mr. Hamblen's account of his own personal experience as a rai road brakeman, with its almost daily episodes of daring and disaster, is as absorbing as any of the fliction. No less is true of Mr. Duna's chapter of recollections of life in the trenches at Vicksburg, with its close, living view of Grant, Sherman and other generals there. Cy Warman's account of his apourn at Karlebad is a bit of humorous, attractive description; Robert Barr's character sketch of Marg Twain, from his own intimate acquaintance, offers a distinctly new view of the great humorist, and Norman Hapgood's study of Boutet de Monvel, with the fire productions from De Monvel, with the fire productions from De Monvel's work, gives one an excellent idea of the leading artist of our time in the portrayal of children. The fiction of the number consists of the second instalment of Anthony Hope's New Z nda novel and several good short stories

A Happy New Year, Mr. Dennen. Last Saturday Mr. O. A. Denten comof the Mount Kineo House, he having taken charge of the place for the late Mr. Winthrop W. Chenery, of Belmont, Mass., Japuary 1, 1868, and from that lime forward the career and renown of the place have been onward and upward and it has achelved a success of which not only the manager and the proprietors should be, but of which our State is, justly proud. When Mr. Dennen took charge of the botel its capacity was stroyed the following year, all the build atroved, this being converted into a temerected in 1870. This was followed by a larger house in 1874, the old house being remused and occupied as a private sum-mer cottage by Mr. Chenery.

The "annex" followed four year later. An enlargement of the hotel 1000 was needed and such had only been a short time completed when, in O. tober, 1882. everything was swipt away by fire ex-States revenue cutter Levi Woodbury: cept the house of Capt. Arthur L. Stewart et al vs. William R. Fattangall et al. Rescript by Whitemonths of the hunting season, which oloses Fridey. The record for December is an follows: Deer, 871: moose, 47; caribous, 32. The total for the months of October, Novembr and December 1s: Deer, 3,940; moose, 139; caribou, 76.

The largest number of deer was shipped from Greenville, which town seat out 749; also the most moose, 37. The largest number of caribou, 17, came from Patten. From Norcross there were shipped 525 deer (the second best record), 18 moose and two caribou. This year's record largely surpasses that of last year in deer. That of 1896 was 2,245 deer, 133 moose and 130 caribou; that of 1896, 1,581 deer, 112 moose and 130 caribou; that of 1896, 1,581 deer, 112 moose and 130 caribou. These records comprise only game shipped by visiting sportamen and do not include that killed by native hunters nor the large quantity romeumed in camps.

The record in detail for 1897 is as follows:

band, and can only be held good at common law.

There is no provision of the statute which makes the payment of fees to the justices, or any formal organization, a prerequisite condition to the exercise of the power to adjourn expressly conferred upon the justices by sections 5, 28 and 42 of chap, 113, H. S. The citation was operative in bringing all the parties interested to the place of disclosure at the time appointed in the forenoon, and in preserving the attendance of the justices requisite to constitute the court. The adjournment was sufficiently regular to be effectual in securing the reassembling jot the court and the reappearance of the parties and their attorneys at the time specified for the afternoon session. It was done by unanimous consent of all present. fied for the atternoon session. It was done by unanimous consent of all present, No injustice or inconvenience was occasioned by it and no substantial reason has been suggested for declaring it irregular and unauthorized.

The debtor submitted himself to examination before two justices of the peace and of the quorum and took the oath prescribed as the result of a legal citation for that purpose.

scribed as the result of a legal citation for that purpose.

He performed one of the alternative conditions of his bond according to its precise terms and requirements.

Whether theproceedings connected with the disclosure could have been held a legal performance of the condition of the defendant's bond, if it had been a statute bond, it is unnecessary to determine; for the bond in suit is only good at common hiw, and in ruffilling the conditions of such a bond, the debtor is not required to perform any other of the statute provisions than those named in the bond.

Rather Personal. "Ladies, 'said the chairman of the neeting of the Woman's Advanced thought and Practical Experience club, this meeting, I believe, was announced There was a murmur of assent and approval, and from the way every woan in the hall straightened up it was evident that there wasn't one of them who didn't feel that she had something f importance to say on the subject. "I hope," continued the chairman, that we will be able to get through this afternoon, but it is unquestionably a most comprehensive subject, and, with your permission, I will undertake to di-ride it so that we can take up one feature at a time."

"So lovely!" "Just the thing!" and

"How nice!" came from verious parts of the hall. "I would suggest that we first take up the landford, as be".— Cries of "Mean thing!" "Premised as a porcelam hathtub a year ago!' Won't paper the hall!" Won't paper the hall!" etc.

SEED TRANSPORTATION.

metimes They Adhere by Glas. hu Commonly by Hooks,

The seeds that steal that it dos by at taching themselves to animals are very numerous and strike one at once on a count of the extreme augenumy that has been expected, in the vision, means for a been expended in devising means for a complishing the end. Mest of them entel in the fur or the feathers of the wild o the tamo creatures and remain there untibrushed off either accidentally or volum tarily. Any one who has gathered a chair arrily. Any one who has y athered a choice assortment of beggars to less on his clothing can testify to the pertineity with which they cling and cannot help but admire the ingenious way in which nature has taxed him for a portion of the carrying frade in seeds is concluded the seed adheres by means of a gline which costs it one of the Virginia mistletors being of this kind. But the most common method this kind. But the more common method of attachment is by hooks. A single coarse of attachment is by hooks. A single coarse hook or a pair is quite sufficient for some of the larger seeds, whose weight implied fracture finer hooks. Others like the extracture finer hooks, and from this flex grade upward numerically fill whose friend the burdes k, whose adheston is so perfect that one might readily believe it to be gaining. The hooks may appear on any or on all parts of the seed or the case containing it in militate variety in form and position.

Then, again, seeds steal transportation in other and strange ways. Some of them incose themselves in toothsome fruits or berries which are freely enter by the wild animals and birds. In this group the
